About

The Work Shop is the employment and skills hub for the Sunshine Coast Public University Hospital construction project.

The construction phase of the project will see skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled positions created for local workers.

The Work Shop has been created as the single point of contact for employers, job-seekers and training organisations on the public hospital project. As an on-site jobs hub, our role is to make matching the right person with the right job a simple, one-stop process.

Our services

For job-seekers

The Work Shop has been created to help local workers find work. We work with the on-site contractors to facilitate job placements and develop training opportunities. We also offer equal-opportunity programs to help disadvantaged job seekers find employment on the public hospital construction site.

To find out how you can benefit from The Work Shop, simply register with us at www.myworkshop.net.au and create your profile to get access to the full range of employment opportunities available.

For employers

Finding local workers with the right combination of skills and experience can be extremely challenging, especially in regional areas. Using The Work Shop streamlines your recruitment process, giving you access to a large pool of workers through a single contact point. We not only match candidates to your vacancies, but also take care of medium term skills demand, anticipating skills shortages and brokering training and development opportunities to be sure each of your positions are filled, even before you need them.

For education, training & recruitment agencies

A key goal of the public hospital project is to build a flexible, skilled and resilient local workforce. The Work Shop is committed to meeting on-site demands locally by sourcing training opportunities to up-skill workers and through building employment pathways from local education providers and commercial and not-for-profit recruitment agencies.

The Sunshine Coast Public University Hospital is set to change the face of health care on the Sunshine Coast.

The $1.8 billion tertiary teaching hospital will offer 450 beds upon completion in 2016, and create thousands of jobs during the construction period alone. As a “legacy” project, a key objective of the public hospital is to act as a powerful catalyst for ongoing economic growth across the region, stimulating commercial, residential and human capital development over an extended time period.

This is the first time a Queensland public hospital has been built through a Public/ Private Partnership (PPP). Lend Lease, as a member of the Exemplar Health Consortium, began the design and construction in October 2012 and are working with Queensland Health to deliver the project to completion by the end of 2016.
